

Alexandria Gazette.

SATURDAY EVENING, AUG. 17, 1895.

HORSE STEAKS.

A packing and slaughtering house where horse meat is prepared for the European market is one of the thriving industries of Chicago. There one hundred ringbone and spavined horses, bought at auction for prices ranging from $1 to $3 a head, are slaughtered and packed in barrels every week. A new addition to the slaughter house indicates that the business is growing. "As I approached the building," a reporter says, "the stench overpowered me. Everything I had ever experienced or read of or dreamed of in vile smells dwindle in a insignificant comparison with this." "A little worse than usual," apologetically remarked James Hayes, who presides over the cauldrons. "You see our furnace got out of order two or three days ago and the cauldrons only got going to-day. In the meantime the meat we cooked in them had decayed. It is not always as bad as this."

Richard Martin is proprietor of this place. In answer to questions he said: "I buy the horses all around at auctions and generally give $3 a head for them. The are all ages, some three and some thirty. They are all in poor condition, but they are healthy and sound. Yes, that one has an ulcer as big as a silver dollar on his shoulder, but that is nothing, it came from pulling. I sell my horse meat in Europe. Have been getting three cents a pound for it, but now I consign it to Antwerp, and expect to get four cents a pound or more for it. My family eat some of the meat but we do not live on it. I would not know what sort of goods I was selling if I did not eat some of it. All of it is alike, and you cook it just like beef; you cook it any way. An extract similar to that out of which beef tea is made is produced from the necks." This industry has been in operation about two years, and when it is understood that the horses slaughtered there are emaciated and broken down animals, necessarily infected with disease, it will be seen at once that the matter is one of considerable importance to humanity in general and the people of Chicago in particular.

Kenneth Bazemore had the good fortune to receive a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy when three members of his family were sick with dysentery. This small bottle cured them all and he had some left which he gave to Geo. W. Baker, a prominent merchant of the place, Lewiston, N. C., and it cured him of the same complaint. When troubled with dysentery, diarrhoea, colic or cholera morbus, give this remedy a trial and you will be more than pleased with the result. The praise that naturally follows its introduction and use has made it very popular. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by L. Stabler & Co.

The tickets will permit of stop-off at Watkins and Rochester in each direction, and at Buffalo on the return trip. Later tours September 7 and October 8.
